FROEDTERT THEDACARE RECOGNIZED IN NEWSWEEK'S
AMERICA'S GREATEST WORKPLACES IN HEALTH CARE 2026
*Supporting and Empowering Team Members, Strengthening Compassionate,
High-Quality Care for Patients and Families*

MENOMONEE FALLS, Wis. — Froedtert ThedaCare has been named to America's Greatest Workplaces in Health Care 2026 list by Newsweek and has also earned six other Newsweek workplace culture awards.

"Our team members are the heart of our mission at Froedtert ThedaCare to inspire each person to live their unique, best life," said Imran Andrabi, MD, FAAFM, president and CEO of Froedtert ThedaCare. "Recognition such as this reflects our organization's commitment to our talented team members, who dedicate themselves daily to provide the best possible care with our communities, patients and one another. We are grateful to our team members who make Froedtert ThedaCare a leader in healthcare workplaces."

Awards include:

- America's Greatest Workplaces
- Greatest Workplace for Culture, Belonging & Community
- Greatest Workplaces for Leadership
- Greatest Workplaces for Mental Wellbeing
- Greatest Workplaces by State
- Greatest Workplaces for Women

Newsweek identified top healthcare workplaces in partnership with Plant-A Insights Group by conducting the largest annual independent workplace-culture research project in the United States. The comprehensive study included a national survey, 580,000 employee interviews, 7.6 million company reviews and the evaluation of more than 37 million data points connected to metrics of employee satisfaction, happiness, work-life balance scores, compensation and more.

According to Newsweek, the final list and awardees include healthcare workplaces that are leading organizations across multiple areas, such as supporting employee well-being and workload, prioritizing safety and quality, improving talent retention and evolving amidst modern healthcare challenges.

"The overall well-being, sense of belonging, fulfillment and joy at work, along with professional development of our team members, are top priorities for Froedtert ThedaCare. We work diligently to ensure our health system's culture is built on a foundation of integrity, respect and meaningful partnerships," said Maggie Lund, chief Human Resources, culture and integration officer at Froedtert ThedaCare. "These distinctions are a celebration of our valued colleagues."
